

£100,000 remodelled short course at the 3 Hammers Golf Complex

Following a £100,000 remodelling of its par 3 short course, the 3 Hammers Golf Complex prides itself on being one of the finest 18 hole par 3 courses in the UK.

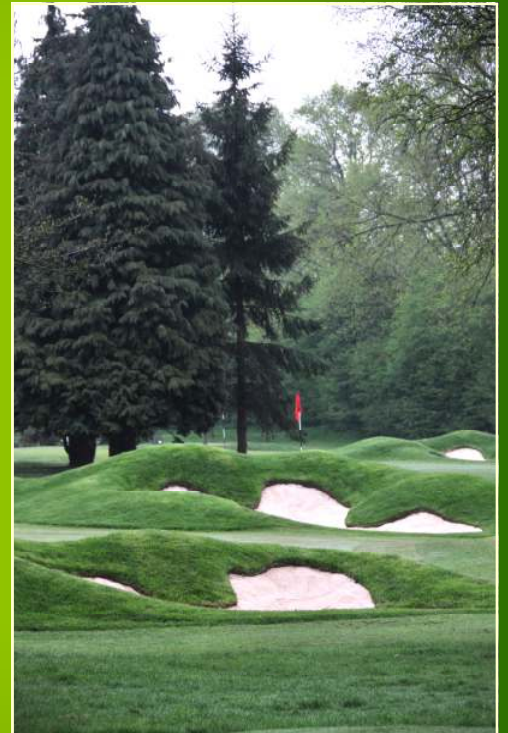

The golf course, originally designed by Sir Henry Cotton in 1964 has been remodelled by world renown golf architects Hawtree Ltd. The company came highly recommended especially as they were commissioned to design the new Donald Trump golf course in Scotland.

Superbly manicured and with first class bunkering detail the remodelled 3 Hammers course offers a great challenge. Whether you are a junior, beginner or scratch player you'll love the new course as it feels like you're playing one of the best golf courses in the country only with the first 300 yards missing off each hole.

What was already a great course has now been transformed into a mini Augusta and is an absolute delight to play providing the opportunity for players to improve their pitching, chipping and putting skills.

Enjoying all the challenges of a full scale course including water hazards, 29 beautifully sculpted bunkers and located in a mature setting — the 3 Hammers short course offers golfers of all abilities a very enjoyable experience.

The new course has been cleverly designed as a good test of one's short game but also for game improvement. The 3 Hammers short course is not your average par 3. It's pretty, beautifully manicured and has a feeling of maturity about it and it quickly shows its teeth in the first few holes. The newly opened par 3 layout is the golf course equivalent of a lightweight boxer, just because it's short — it doesn't mean it won't put you flat on your back!
